

Television Production

RIVERSIDE CAMPUS

08.21.07

Have you ever wondered what it takes to put your favorite television programs on the air? Go behind-the-scenes with Tulsa Technology Center's Television Production program. Students will experience all aspects of television production, from developing the original program concept to shooting the video to editing the final product. Students will learn scriptwriting techniques, basic camera operation and lighting, and digital video editing. Students will work in the studio and on location to produce a variety of programming, including news and entertainment segments. Unleash your creativity with this hands-on, skills driven program! See Program Courses for subjects covered.
